“ Even as time passes, the days are getting shorter, a reminder of the changing seasons..still are hearts remain the same. Unchanged. We hold the memories closer, tighter, as we continue going forward. Good days and bad days. Day to day challenges. It can all become overwhelming. Realizing the fight we're in. Possibly the fight of lives. We go forward knowing that God is in control. Doing the best we can daily to not get weary in well doing. Keeping the faith. Remembering your fight, remembering all that you did and gave. Praying daily for understanding, guidance and perspective. We stand on that wall, not giving up or in, fighting the good fight...believing that if God be for us then no one can stand against us. We're in this together. We love you dad, miss you very much. Thankful for all that we've been given. We love you, your blue-eyed daughter, trish

“ Unreal is the best description of what's going on in the world right now....wow....people being influenced by the wrong things not remembering that these are the days were supposed to stand up, stand in and be the most steadfast. It's truly disheartening to see. Those that so much has bern given are turning their backs on God and every moral fiber that they know....still we pray more diligently than ever....we hope that they will "see the light" and not be lost to the ways of the world. We won't forget those words you impressed upon us to push forward and when all seems lost to continue to stand there for. Like a tree planted by the water, we shall not be moved...we love and miss you more than ever dad...holding onto the promises always. Your blue-eyed daughter, trish

“ As Father's Day is soon, it seemed right to say, thank you dad...in a time of great division, tension and stressful days all around us, still we focus on what's important. Giving back. Caring. Commitment. Support. Love. Truth. Reaching the ones that are hurting. Never giving up or in. Standing when it seems hopeless. Knowing that God has it. Above all else.....This too shall pass. He has not brought us to it to not bring us through it. Faithfulness. Thankyou, for all of the "Rileyisms", one liners, the one word, that could encourage change....Thankyou for being there when it seemed hopeless. Perseverance in all things.....Thankyou for being my dad....we love you and miss you greatly.....love your blue-eyed daughter, Trish Happy Father's Day

“ We are living in a world of discontent, anger, confusion, upheaval, the only answer is God...only he can do what we cannot...my heart is heavy for people that are lost. No one wins like this...the fight is his not ours....yet we stand firm in his faithfulness no weapon formed against us will prosper. Especially now we remember the fight you gave dad, the strength you showed, unwavering. Let us be as strong in spirit. Thank you for being an example, we love and miss you daily. Thankful, for the guidance and instruction that you gave it is really helping in times like these.....this too shall pass.....love always your blue-eyed daughter, trish

“ Today on Veteran's Day, we are appreciative and thankful for all the Armed Forces and the Military personnel who have served and continue to do so. Remembering the "boot camp" stories that you told so many times.."double down" as you were called..."Once a Marine always a Marine"....thankyou for serving, not once but twice. Thank you for giving during such a violotive time like Vietnam that left so many scarred wishing they could make sense of it all.....as the Vietnam memorial opened in Washington DC , we made that trip as a kid to see it and to honor the names of the ones you knew on it.....what an impact that left on me. Freedom isn't free. Thank you again Dad, love you blue - eyed daughter, Trish

Trish-daughter - October 29, 2019 at 10:55 PM

“ Yes, my dad, always lived life as himself...one of his greatest attributes. A "straight shooter" not worrying about what others thought or might say. Like the song "God only knows", the words are true and poignant. God only knows what you've been through..God only knows what they say about you....God only knows the real you.....thankfully, as we are all only human that he can still use us as we are...with all of our imperfections, he loves us. Servitude is a calling to be used in impactful ways due to the willingness to sacrifice and to go above and beyond....just as my dad always did. To me, he will always be more than just a man, he will be forever an example of living a committed purposeful life, giving 100% daily and pushing through even if it meant not winning the popular vote, yet still getting the job done. There's a lot to be said for that...living larger than life in every way, giving, sacrificing, leading even when it was difficult, never giving up or in....fighting the good fight...so not just a man, a true example of faith, perseverance and devotion. Setting a standard that if truly we are willing to follow in truth and lead through perseverance and to devote our lives to the service of the Lord, the reward is great! Unbelievably thankful to have such a true and real legacy....love you dad, always your blue-eyed daughter, trish

“ A Man of God, he was ... he was but a MAN, flawed and human. I always viewed him as larger than life. His family, his legacy, had him in each and every one of them. Their eyes, their smiles, their laughter, their humor, faith and belief. I am saddened when I think of all that was stolen, taken and lost through rivalry, through hurt, through the battle of our families, but he was just a man, one who made an impact for the Kingdom. I think those that judged him the harshest forgot ... he was just a man. I know they are hurting - and somewhere in their life, having had the honor of meeting him ... knew that he spoke truth as he knew it - as he believed it. Above all, GOD, his God, MY God, continues to sit on the Throne ... and somewhere in my heart, as heartbroken and bitter as it was to hear of his passing, knew within the depths, that He had made it "well done, thou good and faithful servant." How easily we forget that forgiveness is vital, and perfection is imaginary ... for we are only perfect when we "enter his gates". As humbled or as angry I may have been in my years of growth and wisdom, it is true that I have him to thank, for my salvation, for introducing me to a just God, a gentleman, the way and the truth .. and so much more ... and he gets credit for my dedication and devotion to a Savior that saved me ... even from the harm I endured in the lifetime I have lived. My favorite memories of PJ are ones where the Spirit overtook his words and he spoke truth, and loud and with passion and poise in such a raw way to articulate what he was meant to say ... to reach the hearts of those lost ... though, at times his presentation seemed to be less than "polite" or "received" or "kind" no matter what, he spoke TRUTH even if it was hard to deliver - but he also defended the very name his family possessed, and any man would do the same for theirs. His hugs were huge, and full of strength and as gentle as could be ... and he wasn't afraid to correct under God's law, as he knew it ... and he wasn't afraid to love, and he wasn't afraid to protect - at ALL costs ... the wisdom and the teachings will forever live on ... his voice in my head - the love from his family at a time where everything was so simple and so easy ... the lessons learned early on to bring me through the hard and the impossible ... I will ... forever be ... grateful for all of the lessons and love ... and hurt and harm ... for he was ... simply ... a MAN ... a MAN of GOD, and that is something to be admired.

“ Remembering you daily, praying for those that are hurting, caring for the ones less able, putting our best foot forward....feeling like none of this is enough, wanting to do more, just as you always did dad, pushing yourself to do just one more thing.....knowing we our doing our best and understanding that we are just human so we lean on God for strength, encouragement and direction to guide us through the valley....I remember you quoting the scripture, yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil for God is with me....words spoken with such strength and confidence was amazing to hear, leaving such an impact on me.....thankful I was there with you that day to be able to hear those words and speak them the same way in my own situation.....there is power in prayer and scripture...striving to live the same way with that kind of faith and determination. Love always-your blue eyed daughter, trish

“ As September the 18th approaches, it's very emotional, the time passes and our hearts stay the same, broken. Waiting for a sense of peace, believing eventually it will happen. At least to some degree. So, much is going on in everyone's lives and in the world, still though we continue to hold on to God's promises, if he be for us then no one can stand against us. Grieving is undeniably a life changing process. Putting into perspective all that is around us and what, who matters most. Even now, lessons are still being learned. We're thankful though for the understanding that we are just passing through to an eternal life without burden, grief, or pain. That one day our time here on this earth will also end, striving to live the best life, giving when we can give, understanding sacrifices made, we continue to go forward. Thankful for all of the blessings we have been given, taking nothing for granted. We won't let down, we will continue to build on and carry the legacy you have left dad, using the guidance, knowledge and inspiration you showed to influence our lives. You will remain at the forefront of our thoughts and hearts, in ways that even in the simplest things, we will say, "As dad always says, as dad always did, dad would say do it this way," because you really are still with us in all that we do. Thank you, for being our dad, papa, friend to all and of course husband to mom....as she continues to stand steadfast. We pray for her and our family that this brokenness will ease.....love always your blue-eyed daughter, Trish

Trish-daughter - September 04, 2019 at 09:46 AM

“ Continually holding and standing on the promises of God our father as we cling to the faith that he already has gone before us to make a way where there seems to be no way. Reminding us that he has fought the fight on our behalf. We know and believe this. In all things give thanks for this is the will of God...we are living by example, remembering the sacrifices made and are dedicated to living a purposeful life. As we keep the candle burning for a lifetime of memories that stay with us...love always your blue-eyes daughter, Trish

Trish-daughter - August 21, 2019 at 11:49 PM

“ It's a here today and gone tomorrow world were living in, with no real understanding of sacrifice or loyalty anymore. It's a sad day when the very ones we count on let us down. The ones that are mentored by others, encouraged and given so much are the ones that continue to expect and not appreciate. The "good old days" are truly gone....no respect for the ones that have given consistently and asked for very little in return. It's a struggle to understand why the ones that have gone on before are not being respected for all the accomplishments and dedication shown. How do we allow it? How do we not take a stand? Just as you would always do, not worrying about who it might offend. Because right is right. It's definitely frustrating and disappointing. Yet, we are doing our best to have patience with it all, in love, knowing that pride cometh before the fall. We will always continue to keep your legacy in our thoughts allowing the guidance you gave to stay in our hearts, we will never forget all that you gave. We will pray for those around us. Encourage those who go a different direction to stay on course. Most of all we will do our best to take the high road in all situations. Believing that our strength and convictions will see us through....ultimately the Lord will make all things right and those that wrong us will be held accountable for it..we will look to the scriptures for encouragement as we go forward...we love and miss you dad, your blue-eyed daughter, always...

“ This doesn't get easier as many people have said it does with time, I disagree...I'm not exactly sure what Heaven is like or how it all works if you will...I know that through the incredibly difficult times we've faced over the last few months, it seems you are with us just in a different way, like there's a veil separating what is here and there. I've experienced this through a very trying time unfortunately and I could almost here and see you pacing the floor, praying with us for a miracle. It was amazing. Maybe God gives us our own measure of comfort when it's needed in times like this one other than the holy spirit that is. I can't explain it. I just know that in some ways that are subtle at times and less subtle in others that you are with us. I just have to be thankful for that, especially since really no one knows, god allowing us to have a moment of that is truly very meaningful. We love you dad and will continue to look for those times that we are given. Love you blue-eyed daughter always Trish

“ As I sit here thinking about you dad, the last few months it has been a whirlwind of emotions, this literally has been the most difficult time we have ever been through and that is saying alot.....as we have all been through so much collectively and individually...this though is no comparison it literally is unbearable at times...grieving is a process, as we've heard, said and been told many times...a process that we all have to go through differently and in our own way. Some grieve longer than others, it has been a very personal and heart breaking time as we continue to go through this "process"....being mindful that grieving is a part of life and a significant way to show our love and appreciation for you.....time can heal but it can also be a bitter reminder of how long we've been without you...I know you would want us to pull up our boot straps and keep marching on so that's what we are doing...we love you dad, your blue-eyed daughter, Trish

“ Making a difference in 2019, for you dad, is the New Years Resolution (on your behalf) that is on my heart, on the 18th of every month making the day special by trying just a little bit harder, giving just a little bit more, caring to helps others when needed and taking nothing for granted...hopefully making a positive impact on others

by showing that we are all in this together.....love you very much dad, your blue-eyed daughter always, Trish

“ Missing you very much dad, wishing I could of done more for you, knowing that mom did everything she could always..such a great example of faith, love and commitment that she has always has shown, she stood the gap and has been steadfast...praying for strength and peace in the days ahead as your absence of course is most felt and missed by her. She truly gave 100% daily....an amazing testament to the love she has for you...praying for the peace that only the Lord can give....love you very much mom and dad, love your blue-eyed daughter, Trish

“ Dad, missing you very much, just thinking of "our" song that we would always sing..."You and me Jesus"....remembering the last time we were able to sing it in church on a Sunday morning...it was great! Trish - daughter - January 03, 2019 at 01:06 AM

“ Here we are in a new year, the struggle is real dad to look forward into a new year without you here...it's a reality that at times is unbelievably sad to think about...as you would say, it pulls at your heart strings....we continue to pray for comfort in times like these...it almost seems like the most difficult time yet...it can be easier to stay busy and not think about what hurts or bothers us the most unfortunately that catches up with us too and eventually we have to stop...that's a hard thing to do for sure. You always said though that life isn't easy and that if the devil is on your doorstep then you must be doing something right, it's when he leaves you alone that you need to worry. In your words, "sometimes you gotta step on him just to get out of bed in the morning"....in other words, we are always challenged and need to be prepared for it....so many lessons you taught us dad. Like when you told me, life is just life, it's what you do with it that matters. I'm thankful for all the time we spent together over the last few years, that fighting spirit was amazing to see no matter what you faced, we love you very much and will continue to press forward doing what we know is right.....love always, your blue-eyed daughter, trish

Trish - daughter - January 03, 2019 at 12:59 AM

“ Taking a minute to reflect on the year that we are in and the new one that is ahead of us....time goes by so quickly, as you have said many times, it's like someone dressed you up in an old man costume, one day we're young and the next day we're not...it just seems to go by so fast. There truly is never enough time to do all the things that mean so much to us...maybe just doing the best we can is all that really matters. We will strive in the year ahead to continue to do our best, to give with all of our hearts and to know that if God be for us then who can be/stand against us...we will be like a tree planted by the waters and stand firm in our faith, knowing that by doing this we shall not be moved....we love you dad, we appreciate the guidance you gave, the inspiration you left and the legacy that goes on.....we will continue to miss you, love you and know that none of us our promised tomorrow...so, as you would say, let us be found doing something that is good and faithful for the lord...Happy New Year, dad, love always..your blue-eyed daughter, Trish

Remembering you on your birthday and everyday in between helps keep a renewed reminder of the promises we are given of seeing you again one day in Heaven. We love you very much dad and especially during this Christmas season as it is a bittersweet time, we will not forget who waited up, usually all night, until we got in from traveling to say "okay now I can go to sleep".... thank you for always caring and loving us...Happy Birthday and Merry Christmas dad, we all love you very much...your blue-eyed daughter, Trish

“ Missing you dad more everyday, I can't imagine this ever gets easier but have to believe that it does get better with time. We miss your laughter, smile and of course way of letting us know that everything will be okay like only you could do....we weren't ready to say goodbye, we weren't ready to not have you here with us, we continue to struggle with that...we do smile though knowing your in heaven and doing all the things you could but imagine or dream about here....it's a comforting thought to know that God has you safely with him, just as you assured us always that he will keep us...safely in the palm of his hand...thank you for your example of faith and strength...we love you very much dad, your blue eyed daughter always, trish

“ It's been another week and we are continuing to miss and love you dad...all that you are, did and were, is difficult to let go of and to accept what we can not change...we go forward with the promise that we will see you again and in knowing this it makes our hearts a little less heavier every day. It was my birthday yesterday dad, it was tough without you but I got through it....I know we are not promised tomorrow just really hoped you could have been with us a little longer....we know that God called you home though...as our time is not his time...love you very much- your blue eyed daughter, Trish

“ Hey Pop,

Thank you...thank you for helping me, even when I was too stubborn to ask for it, thank you for caring and taking time to give me advice, thank you for being an inspiration in so many ways, an example of how even a once rough and tough Marine could become the man of God you were, thank you for witnessing to me, without judgement, and in telling me that regardless of my past, nor what I may have done..even I could still be saved, thank you for your set expectations for my family and holding me to it as they deserve only the best, thank you for teaching me things you had no idea you were teaching me, I want you to know, I will be the best husband I can be for your blue eyed girl and I promise to never break her heart, I promise I will be the best father I can be for my kids, teaching them, protecting them and supporting them for as long as I am here on this earth and someday I can only hope to be a Papa like you...thank you Pop...for everything...in so many ways we are alike, I can only hope to keep the trend and stay as strong as you all the way through my life...I miss you Marine...I know I got to say it to you before you left us, I just hope you truly know how much I meant it...

I Love you Pop...Ricky

“ Dad,
Thankyou for never giving up, fighting with all your might and loving with all of your heart. You have truly shown inspiration and dedication at every turn with a tremendous spirit and fight that only those around you would understand. We know that we are to celebrate but first we grieve as you are unbelievably missed...Thank you for being you, rough around the edges and larger than life...for fighting the good fight. We know to be absent here is to be present there yet now we struggle with that absence in this time. I love you dad, we will hold on to the memories and times we've shared, we will cry, laugh and always remember how much you gave. You are in our hearts, love your blue eyed daughter, trish “ Dad I will miss you until that day I get to see you again...in Heaven. You were my rock, my shield and my mentor. You taught me, by example, how to be a great DAD, husband and friend. This old earth was a better place WITH you here. The memories you left us with (and there are plenty of them) WILL keep us together. We all love you.

Your Number 1 son...
